Unit 10

Unit 10 Extension: Key

Sample responses (answers may vary): Similarities between the UK and the USA Communication: Both cultures are polite and friendly.

Social meetings and greetings: Social greetings are quite informal and people often use a handshake. Business meetings and greetings: The exchange of business cards is done without any kind of formal ritual.

Gift giving: Both cultures exchange gifts for birthdays and major holidays. You also take a small gift when invited to someone's house for a meal.

Differences between the UK and the USA

Communication: British people tend to be more indirect, more reserved and don't display their feelings so publicly.

Americans tend to be more direct and speak in a more straightforward manner. Some visitors might find this style too direct, but no rudeness is intended. Social meetings and greetings: British people can be reserved.

Americans often use first names when introducing each other.

Business meetings and greetings: British people don't maintain eye contact for long, and they use titles and surnames until invited to use first names. Americans quickly feel comfortable using first names.
