	It was the last day of my Mediterranean holiday and I wanted to spend it windsurfing on the beautiful waters off my favourite beach. When I got there, the sea was quite calm and there was a nice light wind. The conditions were perfect for watersports and I couldn't water get out on the water. As I surfed along the waves, I watched the people snorkelling, fishing from boats or jetskiing over the clear blue sea. I was having a fantastic time in my last few hours on holiday

Suddenly a large wave caused by a jet-ski took me by surprise. I lost my balance, fell forward and hit my head hard on the board. I felt myself slipping into the water and everything went black. The next thing I knew, I was on the beach, coughing up water. The only reason I'm still here today is that someone on a jet-ski saw what had happened
